

Clients have a name and may have multiple phone numbers and multiple email addresses. Clients also have a unique ID number.

Pets have a name that distinguishes them from other pets owned by the same client. Pets also have a birth date and age, a breed, a species, and a sex. Clients may own multiple pets -- a pet can only be owned by a single client.

Vets at the practice have a name and a unique license number.

An exam has a unique record number, a date, and a diagnosis. An exam must be made by a single vet, but vets can make multiple exams. A pet can have multiple exams, but each exam must involve one pet.

The vet practice keeps a variety of pet treats on hand. Each treat has a unique name. Treats also have the number of calories and a boolean field telling us whether they are soft or hard. Pets can like many treats and each treat can be liked by many pets.
